Baby ! thou seem'st to me. Oh could I gaze forever Upon that waxen face, So passionless and pure ! The little shrine was sure An angel's dwelling place.

Thou weepest, childless mother! Aye, weep-'twill ease thy heart-He was thy first-born son, Thy first, thy only one-'Tis hard with him to part.

'Tis hard to lay thy darling Deep in the damp cold earth-His empty crib to see His silent nursery, Once gladsome with his mirth.

To meet again in slumber His small mouth's rosy kise Then, waken with a start By thine own throbbing heart, His twining arms to miss.

Oh! these are recollections, Round Mother's hearts that cling-That mingle with the tears And smiles of after year-, With oft awakening.

God took thee, in thy beauty A lamb, untasked, untried; He fought the fight for thee, He won the victory, And thou art sanctified !

Oh! when the hour arrives From flesh that sets me free, Thy spirit may await The first at heaven's gate,

To meet, and welcome me! Then little baby! sleep! Not in thy cradle bed, Not on thy mother's breast, Henceforth shall be thy rest, But with the quiet dead."

How some People get into Society. Society means a certain set of people, who bow to each in the street, making morning calls upon each, and attend each other's parties. People who do none of these things are said not to go into society.

Good society is made up of people who live in good houses, in good parts of the city; who have good furniture; wear good clothes, and are in some respectable business, or rich enough to live without any. Fashionable society supposes a little more than this; a little more wealth, pretension and display. People in fashionable society must figure at the Opera and go to Saratoga. They must wear expensive shawls and diamonds, keep a carriage, and make themselves especially elegant and recherche.

There is a class of ultra-fashionables, made up of what are called parcenus or people grown rich by speculation; who, having lived all their lives in a vulgar manner, are very anxious to make up for lost themselves airs, which to all sensible and well-bred people, are very ridiculous. Conscious that they have nothing but their wealth to recommend them, tain of all goodness. they make the greatest possible display of it on all occasions, and naturally entertain the greatest contempt for all who are destitute of their only claim upon public attention. There is above all these a small class of an unobtrusive, pure and gentle aristocracy, dependent upon display, is everywhere observed, and is the especial rank of this society does not depend on riches, the poer, to a certain extent, as well as the rich, belong to it, and it is by its qualities and constitution, the possible for any one to belong to it without possessing the proper qualifications. Besides the ambition sets of fashion and flash.

It is curious to observe the efforts which people make to get into the society of their ambition. The ladies are especially anxious. There is nothing they will not do to get introduced to certain people, and to obtain the recognition of certain coteries.

For this they will break up house-keeping, and board at fashionable hotels. For this they move from street to street, and square to square; paying rents Eastern poets that is truly affecting. THE GLOBE: A Congressional, Agricultural, and Literary Newspaper. THE Editors of the Congressional Globe propose a new pulli-cation. To descrive the patronage which Congress has ac-corded to their reports of its debates, in receiving and making the Globe the official register, they intend to add promptitude to whatever merit has hitherto recommended the work. They will publish a Daily Globe, to record the proceedings and debates as they occur; and a Congressional Globe periodically, as heretofore, embodying the reports of Congress separate from the miscellane-ous matter which will accompany them in the daily print. To fill the sheet of the daily newspaper, it is designed to gather the news from all quarters, and complete the contents by drawing from every source that may be of most interest among literary novelties, and of greatest utility in scientific and practical works on agriculture. For material, the leading journals and periodicals of France and Great Britain, treating of such subjects, will be consulted, and, it is hoped, advantageously used. Original essays, especially on topics connected with agriculture, will be obtained from the most enlightened and practical men of our The Globe, as a newspaper, and as a vehicle of information and amusement in other respects, will be under the charge of Francis P. BLAIR and JAMES C. PICKETT.
